NoTE ON THE BISHOP'S TRANSCRIPTS. - This term is used because it is the accepted name for the copies of the register sent every Easter to the bishoo's registry, under the Canon of 1597. In a few areas (including Bedfordshire), where the archdeacon's jurisdiction was co-ordinate with that of the bishop, the archdeacon's registry received the copies, in which cases the correct term would be "Archdeacon's Transcripts." For Bedfordshire they are extant from 1602 to 1871, and are fairly complete, except for the Civil War period (1643-49) and for various odd years. They comprise about 25,000 separate documents, and form part of the Muniments of the Archdeaconry of Bedford which are housed in the County Record Office, Shire Hall, Bedford. For as many as 48 Bedfordshire parishes, the earliest extant volume of the original register commences after 1602 (occasionally as late as the 18th century); in these cases the "Bishop' Transcripts" are the sole source. In addition, the following defects in many original registers are often overcome with the aid of the "Bishop's Transcripts": (a) missing leaves; (b) mutilated or incomplete entries; (c) illegible entries; (d) confused dates or arrangement. Further, the Transcripts sometimes yield facts not recorded in the registers: these are denoted in the text by [†].

NOTE ON THE CHRONOLOGY OF THE COPIES. - Until 1752, the year in England commenced on 25 March. The edited copies of the registers retain this method.

(E) MARRIAGE ENTRIES

Before 1754, the residence of the parties is not usually stated. If, however, the home parish is named, it is indicated herein by the initial letter, e.g. in the register of Elstow, "(E.)" denotes "of the parish of Elstow".

After 1754, the statutory form of register states (1) the parish in which each party resided; (2) whether married by banns or by licence; (3) whether bachelor or widower, spinster or widow. It is to be undorstood herein, unless otherwise stated, that all parties (1) belong to the home parish; (2) are married by banns; and (3) are bachelors or spinsters.

THE

THOUGH only a country parish, Cardington can claim as many as four distinguished men, all remarkable as pioneers in their own sphere: two authors, George Gascoigne (?1525-1577), one of the earliest English satyrists, and John Bunyan (1628-1688), the greatest religious allegorist; and two social reformers, John Howard (1726-1790), the prison philanthropist, and Samuel Whitbread (1764-1815), the politician. The connection of each with Cardington will be discussed below in its appropriate place.

The extensive parish of Cardington adjoins the borough of Bedford on the south-east side. In addition to the village, which lies on a minor road three miles from Bedford, there are several hamlets. Cotton End, four miles from Bedford, is the largest, and borders on the main London road; Harrowden lies off this road about midway between Bedford and Cotton End; and Fenlake stands about halfway between Bedford and Cardington. At the date of the first Census (1801), Cardington ranked as the twefth parish in the County, having just over one thousand inhabitants; but it was purely rural in character.

To ownership of the two chief manors underwent few changes during our period. The Blundells owned Cardington manor from the end of the 16th century until 1769, when it was purchased by Samuel Whitbread, the father of the political reformer. The manor of Eastcotts or Cotton End was possessed by the Savages in the first half of the 17th century, and by the Palmers from its close until 1779, when it was also acquired by Samuel Whitbread, who in the same year obtained the manor of Fenlake. The Register proves that the Blundells and the Savages were resident in the parish; but apparently not the Palmers. It is interesting to find that the manors of Cardington and Eastcotts had been in one ownership more than two centuries earlier, when they belonged to Sir John Gascoigne, whose eldest son was the poet. Sir John was however succeeded by another son of the same name, on whose death one of his daughters brought the manor by marriage to the Blund-The Gascoignes occur in the early years of the Register. The poet died at Stamford, but he was presumably born and spent his childhood at Cardington. He was member of Parliament for the borough of Bedford from 1557 to 1559. He may claim to have written the earliest extant comedy in English prose, and the first English critical essay on versification.

The later history of the manors and indeed of the parish in general is largely bound up with that of the Whitbreads, an old-established Cardington family whose ancestral property lay at Ion near Gravenhurst. The earliest entry in Cardington Register attributable to this family is the baptism of 1640 (p.14), but the family had moved to Cardington a trifle earlier, for in his will dated 1633, Henry Whitbread describes himself as "of Cardington, yeoman." The Whitbreads were among the notable nonconformist families in Bedfordshire. In 1653 William joined the church at Bedford, of which John Gifford was pastor, at the same time as did Bunyan. This same William was an active justice of the peace for the County. His signature and armorial seal are frequently found on official documents of the latter half of the century. His approval of the election of the civil parish 'register' for Cardington in 1653 is recorded in his own handwriting (p.118), and he likewise authorised similar registrars to act in numerous other parishes. Not only as a contemporary member of the same dissenters' meeting, but also as a close neighbour, he was doubtless an intimate friend of Bunyan. Whitbread's large family of eleven children are all recorded in Cardington Register. Apart however from those baptized before the ordinance of 1653, the entries are in each case interlined in a different hand, almost certainly William's own literate writing. These children and several of the next generation were of course baptized at the nonconformist church, — were baptized "not according to ye rites of ye church of England", as the entry of 1696 explains. After 1721 few members of the family were baptized at Cardington, though they continued to be brought here for burial. The absence of entries is due to their living at Bedwell Park (a more recent seat in Hertfordshire), in London, or at Southill (at the end of our period). But their interests remained chiefly in their home county, as is shown by much documentary evidence.

The birthplace of Bunyan and of a number of his forefathers was in a cottage at the extreme west end of the hamlet of Harrowden which was known from at least 1548 as Bunyan's End. This last Harrowden cottage lay however just outside the borders of Cardington parish, for the Elstow—Cardington boundary ran between it and the rest of Harrowden. This arbitrary line meant that Bunyan was legally born (and so was baptized) in Elstow parish, though a full mile of open fields stretched between that village and Bunyan's home. Otherwise Bunyan was a native of Harrow—don and can be included among the renowned men of Cardington.

The illustrious name of John Howard is recorded only indirectly in Cardington Register. The three entries in question all bear on his domestic tragedies. The baptism of his only child in 1765 was followed a few days later by the burial of his second wife: she lost her life in giving birth to a boy who was to grow up hopelessly insane. The buried of "John Howard, Esquire" in 1799 refers to this son, and not to the philanthropist, who had died nine years previously in Southern Russia as the result of camp fever caught while on an expedition to investigate the abuses of Russian military hospitals. Howard's grandfather had married Martha, the eldest of William Whitbread's eleven children; and some or all of the Howard entries of intermediate date relate presumably to his family. References to Howard's purely local efforts are rare, for his long absences, spent in his self-imposed enquiries into prison abuses, must be remembered. But it was recently found from Cardington poor relief accounts (see below) that he was apparently responsible for the building by subscription of a new workhouse on Cardington Green in 1757. Howard's donation was ten guineas; those of Ive Whitbread (1700-1765) and Samuel Whitbread (1720-1796) five guineas each.6 The workhouse is not mentioned in the Register at this period. On the other hand, it reveals the existence of one of the earliest-established workhouses in the County; the first mention is in 1724/5 (p.96), from which it may be inferred that it was set up as a result of the Workhouse Act of 1722-23. Burials of workhouse inmates occur a result of the Workhouse Act of 1722-23.7 Burials of workhouse inmates occur desire 1724-42 and 1798-1812; it is probably a mere matter of chance that the provonance of the inmates between 1743 and 1797 is not stated in the Register. There is another connection between workhouses and Cardington. The improvement of the parochial workhouses in Bedfordshire was one of the local matters which interested Samuel Whitbread, the social reformer; and it is not unlikely that he had been influenced in his youth by Howard's zeal in similar directions.

⁴ Brown, John Bunyan: His Life, Times and Work, 23. 5 Dict.Nat.Biog.

Emmison, The Relief of the Poor at Eaton Socon, 1706-1834 (in Pub. Beds.Hist. Rec.Soc., xv, 60). In the middle of the 18th century Cardington had two squire Whitbreads — the descendants of the children of the first and second wives of Henry, son of the Commonwealth justice. One residence was Fenlake Barns, the other was in the village. (Jefferys' Map of Bedfordshire, 1765). From at least 1758 onwards Ive Whitbread presided over the vestry meetings, the minutes of which reveal a remarkably clear-sighted poor relief policy.

7 Ibid., 23.

1803, eight years after introducing his premature Minimum Wages Bill, Whitbread turned his attention to the workhouse (or rather poorhouse) system in his own county, exposing a number of flagrantly bad cases which Quarter Sessions ordered to be rectified.

The usual attempt to gather together material for a note regarding the clergy during the disturbed period in the middle of the 17th century has a meagre result for Cardington. Throughout the crucial poriod, neither the Register nor the 'Bishop's Transcripts' make any mention, even indirectly, of a vicar or curate. Other regular sources also fail to yield anything. In 1634 Thomas White was presented to the vicarage; but a man bearing so common a name certainly cannot be safely identified with the Thomas who married in 1653 and had children born in 1654 and 1656. It seems doubtful whether White ever held the office of vicar. In November 1614 Thomas Watson had been instituted. The Register (from that month) and the Transcripts (from 1614-15) are written in a fresh hand, and the vicar's signatures on the Transcripts and other evidence point to their being written by Watson. This hand continues without break until March 1643/4;10 and is followed by one or more very illiterate hands as far as 1662, in which year the sole reference to William Millington as vicar occurs (but not in the Register), on his ejection as a nonconformist.11 There seems to be no material whatever to bridge the long gap between 1644 and 1662. Daniel Langhorne signs the Transcript for 1664-65 as 'curate', and that for 1668-69 as 'vicar' (the intermediate Transcripts are not extant). The illiteracy of the Register entries for 1644-62 is well illustrated by a single example: even the person who at the Restoration compiled the Transcript for the Commonwealth period failed to grasp one entry, and copied 'a tinker' as 'of Tinler'! Despite the lack of records of church events at Cardington, we may be sure that the religious life of the parishioners was kept at a high pitch, owing to the conspicuous parts played by the chief inhabitants. Whitbroad had a nonconformist neighbour in John Cockayne of Cardington, who was also a justice and was one of the 'commissioners of the publique faith' in 1657. They both had an opponent however in Sir George Blundell, a regalist whose estate was decimated; his opportunity to persocute the dissonters came in 1661, when he sat on the county bench which gave Bunyan his first term of imprisonment; and, incidentally, Blundell was one of the signat-ories to the warrant for Bunyan's second arrest in 1674. 12

The dissenters' meeting at Cotton End dates from the earliest days of nonconformity, and is frequently mentioned from about 1670 onwards as a branch meeting of the Bedford church. 13 It is to the Cotton End meeting that the numerous dissenters' burials from 1738 presumably relate; though it may be noted that 1777 is given as the date of foundation of Cotton End Chapel in an official return of 1859,14 and the Register only specifies Cotton End as the meeting-place in 1778 and 1783. The vicar's interesting remarks on the estimated increase of population during the two decades before the Census of 1801 include a further reference to the dissenters, and an explanation of the relatively high number of burials (see p.119).

On two or three occasions Cardington is found to have suffered from epidemics. The worst of these occurred in the summer of 1.24, and although the word 'plague' is not used, it is to be assumed; in the provious year London had been visited with a very destructive plague. At Cardington 58 doets are recorded between 30 June and 24 October; the average number for a four-month period was only about eight (page 73). Evidence of another visitation in 1616-17 seems to emerge clearly, for between 19 August and 15 January there were buried 35 persons, a figure about four times heavier than the normal (page 75). In 1710 small-pox ravaged the parish and lingered through the autumn and early winter, at least eleven of its victims being mortally struck (page 92).

Occupations are not stated until 1701, but they make it clear that in the 18th century almost the entire population was dependent on agriculture; we may assume that the same obtained in the preceding century.

Cardington Register is one of those which yield valuable evidence as to the relative proportion of paupers. From 1783 to 1794 paupers are distinguished (pp. 110-113), and form even a bare majority. Unfortunately, the Register ceases to mention them at the time when economic depression was beginning to engulf a rapidly increasing number of the labouring class 3.

Apart from ubiquitous names (such as White), the Cardington fairly names which persisted throughout the whole or the greater part of our solutions are: Cranfield (1572-1811), Huckell (1572-1811), Peck (1134-1811), Thely (1593-1809), Thoroughgood (1630-1802), and Willimot (1303-1798). Of those, the most substantial family were the Pecks of Harrowden, one of whom has perpetuated his name by endowing an annual sermon (page 93). The Leveridges (the last of whom is registered in 1688) can be traced back in Cardington as early as the Lay Subsidy Roll of 1332.16 Among font-names normally rare, Douglas was popular in the parish in the first half of the 17th century (no doubt partly because it was the name of Sir Thomas Savage's wife); and the curious name of Urian or Uriah (always 'Urianus') is frequently found in the early years of the Register.

The task of editing Cardington Register during several long periods was heavier owing to the existence of a more or less independent second register in addition to the 'Bishop's Transcripts'. The marriages from 1754 to 1812 are thus largely duplicated (see page 60). Of more importance are the two separate volumes of affidavits of burial in woollen for 1678-1775. Three sources have therefore had to be collated; but the results have more than justified the extra trouble. The deficiency of the marriage entries from about 1691 to 1725 has already been explained in the Introduction to Great Barford Register (Vol. V of this series) as being due to the vicerous of Great Barford and Cardington having been held in plurality during that period. As many as 58 parishioners of Cardington were married between 1715 and 1725 at Barford, also a few before 1713. On the other hand, several marriages of Barford persons are recorded only in Cardington Register marriage of William Willis of Barford in 1707 is entered in both registers. but that of Cardington gives fuller details, and is interesting in that he was the father of the youth who was kidnapped by the military agents of the King of Prussia (Vol. V, page Bii).

It will be noted that Carington is given as a variant of Cardington about 1600 (page 118). This form is rarely found, and has been wrongly identified with Caddington in other documents.17

¹⁵ Except in 1783 the Register merely marks paupers as 'P'; 'pauper' at this period signifies one in receipt of parachial relief.

¹⁶ Two Bods. Subsidies (Suffolk Green Books, no. xviii), 138.

¹⁷ The Place-Names of Bedfordshire and Huntingdonshire (English Place-Name Society, vol. iii), 146.

The population of the parish in 1801 was 1013, and in 1931 was 2006. four hamlets described above were collectively known as Eastcotts, and were formed into a separate civil parish under that name in 1894. In 1801 Eastcotts contained 504 inhabitants, while Cardington village had 509. (See the vicar's memoranda regarding the Census of 1801 on pp.118-19). The area of the whole parish was 5339 acres (Cardington, 2523; Eastcotts, 2816). By the operation of the Local Government Act, 1929, small parts of the parishes of Cardington and Eastcotts were transferred in 1934 to the borough of Bedford. The adjoining parishes are Cople, Old Warden, Haynes, Wilshamstead, Bedford (St. Mary), and Goldington.

Other Parish Records

These comprise only Poor Relief records, but are of considerable genealogical as well as social value. Detailed overseers' of the poor accounts exist for 1756-82, and from 1817 onwards. There is also a large collection of loose papers containing settlement certificates, apprenticeship indentures, and cognate documents, from 1675 cnwards. All these Poor Law records have been deposited in the County Record Office, and the material supplements many entries in the Register.

The editor gratefully acknowledges a donation from Mr. S. H. Whitbread, C B., to cover the deficiency in the cost of publication. F.G.E.

[Two leaves have here been cut out of the Register, which as a result no longer contains the Baptisms for 1698 to 1700 (except for three baptisms interlined on the previous page and noted in their respective years below). The Baptisms for the three years, 1698-1700 are therefore copied from the "Bishop's Transcripts"]

[There are no Marriages for 1659-1660, and only two for 1661 (see below). No Transcripts for 1661-1663 are extant, and those for 1659-1660 contain no Marriages. The Register is very deficient insofar as the Marriages for the latter half of the 17th century are concerned: between 1661 and 1690, the only Marriages recorded are two for 1669, three for 1679-1682, and nine for 1683. It is possible that the missing Marriages were originally entered on the last three leaves of Vol. III, which are cut out. By an unfortunate coincidence, the "Bishop's Transcripts" for 1664-1691 comprise only Baptisms, except for a few Burials, but no Marriages.]

[VOLUME VI].

[Entered on first four fly-leaves at beginning:-] Full copy of details of 1801 Census Return for Cardington. To the section of the Vicar's answer regarding the number of entries in the Register between 1780 and 1800 inclusive, which includes the statement: "Baptisms, total 482; Burials, total 503", the Vicar adds this comment: "Hence there appears a diminution of Population, particularly if it be considered that some [written above "many" struck through] Dissenters from the Established Church are buried at the Meetinghouse & are not registered: but a Consideration must be had to the number of Children interred unbaptized, which increases the Proportion of Burials to that of Baptisms, in a greater ratio than that of Burials to Births: These two circumstances being considered, I doubt not but that there has been an increase in Population for the last 21 Years, tho' the average number of Burials exceeds that of Baptisms."

The copy of the answers returned by the Overseer, referring to the actual population, number of houses, etc., in 1801, setsout the figures under three separate headings, viz., Cardington (township); Hamlets of Fenlake with Harrowden; and Hamlet of Eastcotts *
